Finding Me Support Group Welcomes “Tainted Saints”

Original Cabaret show Finding Me will be back at Raj House during the Cabaret Fringe Festival with “Volume 2” featuring new characters and for the first time a full band “The Tainted Saints.” The show explores themes of identity, overcoming adversity, self-love and acceptance in a support group format with original stories and live music.

Theodoros and her collaborator James Dean, premiered the show at Raj House during the Adelaide Fringe as a duet with piano, vocals and a little ukulele. After the success of their first season they decided to grow the concept with a full band for the Cabaret Fringe Festival. The band features Marduk Gault on acoustic & electric guitar, Troy Benson on drums and of course James Dean on keys and Phi Theodoros on vocals and ukulele.

“It’s been a fantastic experience working with the band and growing our show’s sound further with some slinky cabaret vibes for this new season.” Says Dean who is the musical director of the show,

“We called them the Tainted Saints as a bit of a throwback to our first show. The music writing process has been really collaborative and we’re very happy to have such a talented group of musicians to work with.”

Guitarist Marduk Gault is excited to have a new challenge with his music after primarily playing Flamenco for the past decade,

“This show has been a really exciting project for me, it’s a new challenge and a great team to work with.” Says Marduk,

“I do get to play a bit of Flamenco during one of our characters stories though, he’s one of the original members of our fictitious band “The Tainted Saints” and after a long journey he discovers the power of Flamenco.”

This is the second time Theodoros & Dean have performed a show during the Cabaret Fringe Festival, their previous show Depression the Musical made its debut during the 2013 Cabaret Fringe. Finding Me Vol 2 will be playing at Raj House for 5 nights during the Cabaret Fringe Festival and in the spirit of all good support groups there will be biscuits.
